Weathering Stormy Financial Times

Paul Simon introduced today's speaker and a very pertinent topic, "Weathering Stormy Financial Times." Koren Frost, Division Manager for First Investors, talked about the approach to investing in the current market and strategies on how it relates to our investing goals.

She started by saying she hadn't checked what the financial market did yesterday and hadn't done so today. She mentioned that she doesn't make it a habit to constantly check on what is taking place, but rather she takes a long-term view of what the market does. In the past, when a downturn has taken place it has been followed by rebounds and times of growth. Current market conditions affected by the real estate downturn, foreclosures, high-energy prices, and sluggish economic growth, have contributed to volatile market performance. Similar to the experience of an airplane flying through turbulence, financial fluctuations have a history of leveling out.

Koren went on to say that the more long term your outlook on investing the greater your chances of making money. Over a 10 year timeframe there is a 97% chance of making gains. Her point, if you are having trouble sticking with a financial plan it might be good to contact a professional to map out a strategy and plan accordingly. She stated, "what is right for one person may not be right for you." "Being too conservative can cost you money." An example of this being the small returns many banks yield. Factoring inflation the price of goods in 1977 costing $100 would now cost $338 today.

In football terms, savings and insurance can be thought of as a defense. Investments should be considered as the offense. Spread out your investments in different industries is also a good strategy. Consider a diversity of stocks and bonds to compensate for times when one is suffering through a downturn. Those interested in market timing, limited losses, or maximize gains are playing a losing game; simply put, it is mere luck to think this might work!

In down times, it is best to keep investing. You are able to buy more and take advantage of "sales" that can bring you more. Don't let the government compound your losses by taking taxes from accounts being withdrawn on. Take advantage of tax shelters and tax free accounts.

In summary there are no magic tricks when dealing with investments. Take a long-term approach, consider using a professional to help you plan your investments, and consider your personal needs to make an overall strategy for your financial well being.

Good Morning Optimist

Greeters for today's meeting were Frank Ross and Russ Paul.

President Greg Young called the meeting to order. Don Iley give the invocation and then leads us in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Guests today included Mike Willis, introduced by Joe Marci. Mike works with the Denver Rockies as an usher and is here on his second visit, perhaps we can convince Mike to join us. Fred Pasternack followed by saying he had a guest that he was sure would show, but no sight of him just yet.

Greg Young asked members if they had ever had their name inscribed on the inside of their shirts. Otherwise known as collar ID. HMMMM!

New member Mychael Dave was inducted into the club with sponsor John Young and board members in attendance. Welcome aboard Mychael!

Announcements

Craig Eley announced the performance by the Denver Municipal Band Saturday, July 26th, at Southmoor Park at 7:30pm. Your editor was fortunate to attend a performance by the Jazz Band edition of the DMB at Plat Park on Friday the 25th and was impressed by the talent. Children playing, neighbors connecting with food and drink, even a local gellato merchant giving away free samples made the evening a beautiful reminder of the great communities this city contains.

Howard Fry reminded us of the zone picnic coming up August 9th. Added highlights include Freddie Pasternack volunteering for the pie-throwing contest—which end Freddie hopes to participate on remains to be seen.

Cy Regan updated us on the upcoming parking duties members can help out with for the MUDD Volleyball tournament August 2nd. This is a major fundraiser for the March of Dimes, and the parking is a key component to get the event started off on the right foot! It was a great time last year and I look forward to it being even better this year.

Randy Marcove announced the University Hills Neighborhood Picnic at Eisenhower Park on this Sunday. Bands will perform, with donations being accepted for the Rocky Mountain Food Bank. Randy also mentioned he is a high school football referee and those interested can participate with him—chain gang opportunities are available for games. And Happy Birthday Randy!

Joe Marci stated that the new entertainment books would be ready soon. These books support the Robert Sullivan Scholarship Fund and are a great way to raise funds for the club. Members who are involved in other Optimist clubs or groups with interest to sell the entertainment book are encouraged to contact Joe and get the ball rolling. Happy Selling!

Don St.John made known that after 10 years he is giving up his chairman duties with the Bingo Program, effective October 1st. So anyone interested in taking over his position has the chance to learn from the master during the next two months. All members saluted Don for his efforts and a job well done.

Bryce Slaby announced that the North American 4 Rugby Tournament takes place this Tuesday at the new stadium in Glendale, Infinity Park. Tickets are only $10 or $18 for the game on Tuesday and on Saturday night. Canada's 2 Best Teams vs. United States 2 Best teams in all out battle to see who is the best of the best! This is a great chance to see national caliber rugby teams in a great new stadium.

John Young followed up on dinner and entertainment provided by the Country Dinner Playhouse performers. Ten couples have signed up and 6 have paid, so get your money in. The date is Tuesday, August 19th. Couples can enjoy this evening of fun for $55.

Cy Regan reported weekly super market card sales of $1,400, a good week to build on.

There were no winners for this weeks drawing, but your editor, are good member Robert Wardlaw, did win $20 by having his nametag on and then getting the opportunity to draw the 8 of Spades, which was a winner!

Thank you MSOC!
